BEALE AIR FORCE BASE CHILD DEVELOPMENT CENTER

• Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to join me in celebrating the April 2, 2012, opening of the new Child Development Center, CDC, at Beale Air Force Base in Yuba County, CA.

I am so pleased that this facility has at long last become a reality for the families stationed at Beale, and I was proud to have fought to secure the funding required to build it.

When I visited Beale in 2004, I saw firsthand the critical need for a new CDC on base. The old CDC built in 1967 was in dire need of replacement. The aging facility was too small to accommodate eligible children and was found to contain safety hazards including asbestos and lead. The men and women serving our Nation at Beale deserve to know that their children are being cared for in a safe and nurturing environment. The new CDC will provide this peace of mind.

The Silver-LEED-Certified 37,566-square-foot facility will increase the number of children served from 175 to 280, relieving the burden on many military families who currently rely on childcare located 20 miles off base. It will have a total of 21 classrooms for children ranging from infants to preschool age and employ 70 staff members. The new CDC is also centrally located and easily accessible from anywhere on the installation. This new CDC will go a long way to ensure we are meeting the needs of the families stationed at Beale.

As cochair of the Senate Military Family Caucus, I know that when a servicemember wears a uniform, the entire family serves. That is why we must do everything we can to lessen their burden and provide for their needs. The new CDC at Beale symbolizes America's commitment to our incredible military families and is one more way we can show our gratitude for their service.

TRIBUTE TO LEE ANDERSON

• Mr. CORKER. Mr. President, today I wish to honor an exceptional Tennessean and fellow Chattanoogan for his outstanding career as a newsman and his many contributions to our city and country.

Lee Stratton Anderson was born in Trenton, KY in 1925 to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Anderson. At the age of 5, he moved to Chattanooga, TN, where he still resides today. In 1942, as a high school junior, Lee was hired as a reporter at the Chattanooga News-Free Press, and on April 18th of this year, he will retire from that same newspaper 70 years to the day his storied career began.

It was clear from an early age that Lee Anderson was an exceptional person dedicated to serving others and his country. In addition to becoming a journalist at 16 years old, Lee earned the distinction of Eagle Scout and was the winner of two Sons of the American Revolution Good Citizenship Awards. After high school, he enrolled in the University of Chattanooga and volunteered for the Air Force aviation cadet program, serving 21 months on Active Duty in World War II before returning to school and to the paper. He maintained a busy schedule as a college student, arriving at 6:00 a.m. to the paper each day before heading to class until 9:30 p.m. Remarkably, he graduated in 3 years while still finding time to be a leader on campus. He was president of Sigma Chi fraternity, the Blue Key Honor Society, and the Interfraternity Council, and chairman of the Honor Council Indoctrination Committee, all while holding a full-time

At the Chattanooga News-Free Press, Lee covered politics and the State legislature before being named associate editor in 1948 and then editor in 1958. It was as an associate editor that Lee began to write the editorials that would become his signature. Over 40 years later, when Walter Hussman bought and merged the News-Free Press with then-rival the Chattanooga Times, Lee was named associate publisher and editor of the combined paper. The Chattanooga Times Free Press remains the only U.S. newspaper to offer two editorial perspectives, and. at age 87, Lee continues to plan three or four editorials for the Free Press section of the editorial page each day. His editorials have been reprinted in publications throughout the country. garnering him numerous awards, including the Freedoms Foundation's national award for editorials in 1979.

In addition to his 70-year career in the newsroom, Lee Anderson's contributions to his community, State and country have been just as impressive and valuable. He is a retired major in the U.S. Army Reserve and has served on a number of committees focused on educating the public about the Civil War. In 1957, he cofounded Confederama, now known as the Battles for Chattanooga Museum, an educational tourist attraction re-creating local battles and highlighting Chattanooga's role during the Civil War. He has delivered more than 2,000 speeches on a variety of topics, including religion, history, and politics, and authored two books: "Valley of the Shadow: the Battles of Chickamauga and Chattanooga, 1863" and "Israel: I looked over Jordan."

Lee has held leadership positions in numerous civic causes and organizations, including the Chattanooga Downtown Rotary, the Chattanooga Convention and Visitors Bureau, and the local chapter of the American Red Cross, to name a few. This past year, Lee was named the public face of United Way's annual campaign after almost 80 years of continuous participation with the charity, making his first contribution as a first grader. He also served Tennesseans for 4 years under my good friend, then-Governor LAMAR ALEXANDER, on the Tennessee Industrial and Agricultural Development Commission.

Lee Anderson's many achievements in life are too numerous to list here, but if you were to ask him, he would tell you after his wife, Betsy, of 62 years, two children and two grand-children, one of his greatest accomplishments has been teaching Sunday school for over 40 years at First Presbyterian Church in Chattanooga.

Mr. President, I have known Lee Anderson for my entire adult life and have seen firsthand his love for our community and witnessed his contributions to making it a great place for our citizens to live and do business. Over his long career. Lee's views have always reflected his strongly held beliefs and deep devotion to the city and country he loves. It is an honor and a privilege to serve in the Senate on behalf of Tennesseans like Lee Anderson, I congratulate him for his remarkable dedication to the newspapers of record in Chattanooga and join with so many others in thanking him for the lasting impact he has made, which will extend for many years to come.

FROZEN FOOD MONTH

• Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, today I wish to acknowledge Frozen Food Month and to recognize the frozen food industry's significant efforts to ensure that families and schoolchildren across the United States have access to healthy, affordable foods such as fruits and vegetables.

In our all too often hectic lives, frozen foods give Americans the flexibility to quickly prepare meals that are both nourishing and affordable.

School lunch planners also rely on frozen foods as they seek to serve healthy, child-friendly meals while stretching limited budgets. For instance, frozen fruits and vegetables are readily available and offer outstanding nutritional value to schoolchildren year-round.

Even during these tough economic times, the frozen food industry continues to provide much needed American jobs, with almost 100,000 employees working in nearly 700 facilities nationwide.

I would like to take this opportunity to honor one of my home State's own frozen food companies, National Frozen Food Corporation. Headquartered in Seattle, WA, National is currently celebrating its 100th year as a leader in the frozen foods industry.

National began its impressive history when a man named William McCaffray, Sr., started selling frozen strawberries in 1912. With a $5,000 loan from a friend, Mr. McCaffray built his small business from the ground up, and in the 1930s expanded to selling frozen vegetables as well as fruit. From Mr. McCaffray's humble beginnings, National has grown
